

Saturday morning surgeries replaced by evening surgeries

As of the 1st March 2010, Dapdune House Surgery will no longer be open on Saturday mornings. This change in our opening hours has been agreed with Surrey PCT, and is in response to an audit carried out recently, in which we asked patients when they preferred to consult with their Doctor or Nurse. The results of the audit showed that significantly more patients preferred to have a consultation on a weekday evening, when compared to a Saturday morning. As a result, we have now replaced the Saturday morning surgeries with additional sessions on Monday and Thursday evenings.

We try to listen to our patients, and we hope that these changes will meet with your approval, particularly to those commuters who work in London.
